

Call for Proposals

5th Annual South Asian Mental Health Conference Hosted Virtually March 13 & 14 , 2021

The theme for the 2021 conference will be Resilience and Triumph focusing on South Asian communities healing from the impacts of a global pandemic, social injustice and systematic barriers.

We are seeking poster and symposium proposals, which focus on these themes and that are informed by research, theory, and practice in South Asian mental health. Too often the diversity in cultural values, practice, and celebrations are not recognized. Thus, we are seeking proposals that will allow attendees to reflect on the uniqueness and gems that help increase resilience during times of hardship and trauma. We are looking for proposals, which address spirituality, religion, traditional forms of healing, culturally sensitive interventions/research practice, and community grassroots/social justice practice. We are also looking for art, clinical, research, and community grassroots submissions. Proposals can be submitted by any individuals in the mental health or related fields (undergraduate students, graduate students, & Professionals)

Details of the submission:

1. Title
2. Type of proposal
3. Abstract (250 words limit)
4. Summary of what will be covered in your poster or symposia (600 words limit)
5. Author's contact (Name, email, phone number) Author's school or organization affiliation

[If there is more than one author, please provide info of other authors]
